

Fish You Can Catch

Chinook Salmon

Preferred Conditions: 53°F-55°F
Near shore, 300 feet of water

Local Tips: During the spring and fall, pier fishing in Grand Haven is great for chinook. In May, they come near shore to feed on alewife. In the fall, they move to their native streams.

Fish Facts: The chinook salmon offers the greatest challenge of any Michigan fish because of its trophy size and superb fighting qualities. Pier anglers use light line (6-20 lb. test) and live alewife as bait. In the fall, a variety of artificial baits are used.

Coho Salmon

Preferred Conditions: 54°F
Ten miles from shore to upper 20-40 foot water column

Local Tips: In April and early May, small boat anglers find the warm water discharge near Port Sheldon to be a good fishing area. During the same time, pier anglers catch coho by casting small spoons or natural baits.

Fish Facts: Coho is the smaller cousin of chinook. Coho can be distinguished from chinook by fewer spots on a somewhat forked tail and a black mouth with whitish gums. The anal fin has 13-15 rays, while the chinook has 15-17 rays. Keeping your alewife or smelt off the bottom with a large bobber is a successful technique for catching coho from the Grand Haven and Holland piers.

Steelhead Trout

Preferred Conditions: 58°F-60°F
Shallow depths of 8 feet or less

Local Tips: Shore fishing is found along the county's sandy beaches at Grand Haven State Park, North Beach Park and Holland State Park.

Fish Facts: In the fall, steelhead trout are caught in shallow depths of 8 feet or less using spawn bags and artificial lures. From late June through September, steelhead can usually be found concentrated near temperature breaks 8-15 miles offshore.

Brown Trout

Preferred Conditions: Upper 50°F's
Near shore or on shoals if the water temperature permits

Local Tips: The warm water discharge at Port Sheldon provides good early brown trout fishing. Pier anglers use dead smelt and live alewife as successful baits. Both the Holland area and Crockery Creek are stocked with brown trout annually.

Fish Facts: In the spring, brown trout frequent the shallows of Lake Michigan, particularly around piers, old wood abutments and power plant discharges. As summer approaches, they like points, ledges and gravel or rocky bottoms. As early as April, small boat anglers have luck trolling between sandbars in 6-12 ft. of water. Small artificial baits trolled at least 100 yards behind the boat are particularly successful.

Lake Trout

Preferred Conditions: 49°F-51°F
Near shore to 200 feet of water

Local Tips: In August, the large lake trout come offshore in Holland and Grand Haven. During this time it is not uncommon for anglers to catch 20+ pound lake trout.

Fish Facts: Since nearing extinction in the 1940's, the lake trout population has been maintained by stocking. More intensive stocking takes place on offshore reefs near the center of Lake Michigan.

Yellow Perch

Preferred Conditions:
Water temperatures and depths vary—can be caught year-around

Local Tips: From July to September, pier anglers in Holland and Grand Haven take excellent catches. The best waters for ice-fishing are Big Bay in Lake Macatawa, Pigeon Lake, Spring Lake, Bruce's Bayou and Lake Michigan.

Fish Facts: The best way to catch perch is to try likely locations and depths, moving every 10-15 minutes.

Walleye

Preferred Conditions:
Water temperatures vary-6-30 feet, deep rock areas near shore and submerged sandbars

Local Tips: Large populations are found in Lake Macatawa, the lower Grand River, Spring Lake and Crockery Lake.

Fish Facts: In the spring and fall, walleye fishing is best in shallow water close to points or mouths of rivers. Deep waters are best fished in the summer with line strung 30-50 yards behind the boat, and bait at the bottom in 6-30 ft. of water.

Largemouth Bass

Preferred Conditions:
Shallow waters early in the season, then up to 30 feet

Local Tips: Ottawa County offers some of the Midwest's best bass fishing. The Grand River bayous have some of the best fishing in the area, but bass can be found in most waters including Lake Macatawa, Pigeon Lake, Crockery Lake and Spring Lake.

Fish Facts: Largemouth bass may be caught by casting, using crank baits, and by still fishing with night crawlers, minnows, crayfish or frogs. For live bait, the best hook size is a long-shank No. 2. A medium action rod with 8-12 lb. test line works well. In areas of heavy log and tree cover, use a 15-20 lb. test line.

Bluegill

Preferred Conditions:
In spring, fishing is best 1-4 feet deep along weedy edges. In summer, 10-20 feet deep, and in winter, as soon as the ice forms.

Local Tips: All the Grand River bayous, particularly Lloyds, Stearns, Pottawatomie, Millhouse and Bruce's, produce consistent bluegill fishing. The eastern end of Lake Macatawa also produces bluegill.

Fish Facts: Best fishing times are early morning, after 4 p.m., and after dark. When bluegills bite, first let them nibble, then set the hook with a short tug. Red worms or wax worms are the best bait.

Northern Pike The bayous of the lower Grand River and Pigeon Lake offer good spring and fall pike fishing.

Smelt In April, hand nets used on the Grand Haven and Holland piers are successful in the evenings.

Catfish Both the Grand River and Lake Macatawa offer excellent catfish angling. Flathead catfish up to 30 lbs. have been caught, but 9-12 lbs. is more common.

Menominee During October and November, the Menominee come inshore and are accessible to pier anglers.
